Annual Report

Institute for Strategic Management: Stakeholder View
Dear Reader

My research group and I look again back on a year full of interesting, inspiring and challenging activities related to our research and teaching in the area of stakeholder management. Some of the highlights of 2009 were the launch of a new CTI project entitled “The Evaluation and Effect Measurement of Stakeholder Engagement”; the publication of an international version of our book “Lizenz zum Managen” at Palgrave with the title "Sustainable Success with Stakeholders - The Untapped Potential"; a precontract with Cambridge University Press for our new book on stakeholder theory; the field trip to India to investigate practices of stakeholder management in the context of micro-finance; the launch of an MSc program with a strong focus on strategic stakeholder management; the nomination of “Promotorin für Vereinbarkeit von Beruf und Familie im Kanton Zürich”; and the establishment of the Center for Corporate Social Responsibility headed by Dr. Christoph Weber-Berg at HWZ. Furthermore, we are happy to announce that we were upgraded from a research center to a research institute. The report at hand provides you with further information on these and other activities.

As one of the oldest stakeholder research groups in Europe, we dedicate ourselves to questions such as: How and why do firms adopt a broad stakeholder orientation? How can firms identify strategically relevant stakeholders and systematically involve them into their activities? How can we evaluate processes of stakeholder engagement, and how can we assess the efficiency of those processes? We understand stakeholder management as an applied science and are aiming to contribute to the development of practical concepts and tools based on an advanced theoretical foundation and on sound empirical investigations. Altogether, our goal is to provide a solid framework for analyzing value creation with and for stakeholders, which we call “the Stakeholder View”.

About the Institute
Allow me to inform you on some changes in our research team: Isabelle Kern received her doctorate and is now working as a senior research assistant; we congratulate. Our assistant Marc Moser completed his studies in economics and business administration at the University of Zurich with a thesis on “Die ‘License to Compete’ am Beispiel der ZKB: Nachhaltigkeits-Research als Differenzierungskriterium”, we also congratulate. He will keep working for the research team and start his doctorate next year. Our assistant Andrea Gäumann completed her diploma thesis on social reputation and is now in the final spurt for her exams. Dominic Käslin, who left the team in May, and Irène Perrin are both about to finish their dissertations. Our assistant Claude Meier started his PhD project in July and obtained a grant by a foundation; another reason to congratulate.

We are pleased to submit to your kind attention the Annual Report 2009 of the Institute for Strategic Management: Stakeholder View at the University of Applied Sciences for Business Administration (HWZ), Zurich. We hope that you will find this booklet interesting. If you wish to find out more about us, please visit our homepage (http://www.fh-hwz.ch/shv). If you would like to receive additional information or find a question unanswered please do not hesitate to contact us.

Best wishes

The Center for CSR was established in May 2009 to further the CSR profile of the HWZ and to support the Institute for Strategic Management: Stakeholder View in recognizing its responsibility to teach and research in that area.

The Center for CSR is headed by Dr. Christoph Weber-Berg. After his studies of theology at University of Zurich, he pursued the profession of a priest at the ‘Reformierte Landeskirche’ of the canton Zurich, for which he also established the ‘Fachstelle für Wirtschaftsethik’. Besides his occupation he completed a dissertation in economic ethics and an MBA in Nonprofit Management. Before Christoph Weber-Berg became the Head of the Center of CSR at the HWZ, he managed the sustainability research of Forma Futura Invest AG in Zurich. Christoph Weber-Berg is supported by two CSR advisors, Sandra Huber-Ingold and Theresia Büsser Stalder; both started working at the Center in late fall 2009.

Research of the Center focuses on “The moral case for CSR”: The role and function of ethical values with respect to rooted and lasting CSR management in corporations. Teaching includes introduction to Business Ethics and Corporate Social Responsibility throughout all Bachelor, MSc and many Executive Programs.
Only by including the interests of all parties linked to the firm mutual trust can be built which enables the firm’s sustainable success.
“The Evaluation and Effect Measurement of Stakeholder Engagement”

As a consequence of last year’s successfully completed project “ICT Supported Stakeholder Management as a Success Factor in Business”, the Institute for Strategic Management: Stakeholder View has launched another project in collaboration with the Commission for Technology and Innovation (CTI).

At present, many organizations conduct stakeholder dialogues on most diverse subjects. By doing so, a systematic evaluation of these engagements and an answer to the question which the benefits of these dialogues for the organization as well as the involved stakeholders are remains absent. This is exactly what the project, by Prof. Dr. Sybille Sachs (HWZ), Prof. Dr. Ruth Schmitt (FHNW) and their teams and in cooperation with Brugger und Partner AG, represented by Dr. Thomas Streiff, assesses.

By using the examples of three companies – the pharmaceuticals Pfizer Schweiz and MSD and a multinational from the nutrition industry – the research project analyses on the one hand, how stakeholder engagement processes can be evaluated systematically and on the other hand, how those processes can be tested for their efficiency. As a consequence, the primary goal is the development of an evaluation concept. This concept is intended to be capable of showing in a transparent and comprehensible way, how stakeholder engagement processes impact an organization's value creation and additionally, what the benefits of such an engagement not only for the organization itself, but also for the stakeholders involved may be.

Financed by the Commission of Technology and Innovation (CTI), the research project is realized in collaboration with the Institute for Management at the University of Applied Sciences Northwestern Switzerland (FHNW), Brugger & Partner AG (BHP), Pfizer Schweiz AG, MSD, and a multinational from the nutrition industry.
India Project

“Enhancement of India’s Sustainable Economic and Social Development Pursuing a Stakeholder-Oriented Management Approach”

In order to test our Stakeholder View of Strategy (SHV), developed in the context of Western economies, in other cultural settings, we launched a project with Universities and firms in India early this year. Under the guidance of Prof. Sachs and Prof. Rühli from HWZ and Prof. Krishnan and Prof. Lakshman from Jain Group University in Bangalore, Karnataka, the project aims to pursue the appropriateness of a stakeholder-oriented management approach in an Indian context. In doing so, we expect to learn from approaches adopted in India and vice-versa. The India-project is co-financed by the Federal State Secretariat for Education and Research (SER) and the expected duration is from 2009 until 2011.

One preliminary workshop took place in spring 2009 in India. In March we visited several business schools in Bangalore in order to find an academic partner for the purpose of mutual cooperation. Among others, we met Prof. Krishnan and his colleagues from the Jain University Group. They already have experience with Microfinance Institutions, which act according to a comprehensive stakeholder orientation and which aim at contributing to the sustainable development of people living in poverty.

Microfinance institutions provide financial services to people living in poverty. The aim is to give the poor a “permanent access to an appropriate range of financial and other services that generate income in a sustainable way”.

On our trip for this feasibility study we also learnt some first lessons from microfinance institutions and NGOs. One case in point is that these organizations have an unusually broad access to their stakeholder network based on their vision. Their understanding of being “social enterprises” made this broad access possible. The social enterprise could be a new model for the current capitalism which is in deep crisis and nearly only considers shareholders.
In 2008, the HWZ launched a Hotel Management Training Program in Bhutan in cooperation with the JACOBS Foundation in Zurich (JF). This program is co-financed by Elysium Foundation. In January 2009, Sybille Sachs and Edwin Rühli were invited to lecture the module strategic management in this program. In this course, the students were developing a strategy diary for their hotels based on the insights of the Stakeholder View.

Various Working Papers, short notices in newspapers and periodical publication of a column in the “Neue Aargauer Zeitung“ by Prof. Dr. Sybille Sachs.
Sustainable Success with Stakeholders - The Untapped Potential

by Sybille Sachs, Edwin Rühli, Isabelle Kern

In spring, the English version of the book “Lizenz zum Managen”, written by Sybille Sachs, Edwin Rühli and Isabelle Kern, was published by Palgrave. The book shows managers in a very hands-on manner how they can identify their stakeholders and cooperate with them in a mutually successful and satisfying way. It includes numerous examples from case studies and from international firms, illustrating the stepping stones to a comprehensive stakeholder management. This makes it an indispensible companion for managers of small and large firms and for business students interested in seeing how the theoretical concepts of the Stakeholder View can be applied in practice.

Stakeholders Matter - A Stakeholder-Based Theory of Strategy

by Sybille Sachs, Edwin Rühli, Isabelle Kern (to be published in 2011)

During 2009, Sybille Sachs, Edwin Rühli, Isabelle Kern and their team have been working on a new theory book. The authors' aim is to create a state-of-the-art book on stakeholder-oriented strategic management that calls for a new understanding in strategic management to overcome the obvious shortage of existing business models that the current financial crisis has clearly revealed.

The shareholder value model has led to mismanagement, to managers taking excessive risks and a market failure which not only endangers the affected firms but whole industries and in the end the global economy.

The book will further advance the strategic approach “Stakeholder View of Strategy” (SHV) developed and published in the book “Redefining the Corporation” by Post, Preston & Sachs (2002) by understanding stakeholder relations as partnerships to draw on benefit potentials in an economic as well as societal sense. The upcoming paradigm regards a corporation and its stakeholders as partners which in a network can work together to exploit their common grounds to create new innovative solutions.
Sybille Sachs was nominated by the special department on equal opportunities for women and men (Fachstelle für Gleichstellung von Frau und Mann, Kanton Zürich) to act as a promoter for the compatibility of family and career and to sensitize for and inform on topics related to work-life-balance. Prof. Sachs was nominated due to her extensive network in both academia and practice and especially due to her many contacts to management trainees and future leaders as a result of her teaching activities at HWZ and University of Zurich.

We want to provide insights to academics as well as management practitioners who wish to have a comprehensive view of strategic management.
Launch of the „Master of Science (MSc) in Business Administration“ with a Major in Strategic Management

In March 2009 the first class of students started their studies in the newly developed MSc program at HWZ. This program is the first of its kind in two ways: It is the first MSc offered by a private University of Applied Sciences in Switzerland, and it is the first one with a major in strategic management. Furthermore, it is designed as an extra-occupational course of study, allowing students to continue their work on a penum from 50% to 80%.

A joint module in leadership with the Darden School of Business (University of Virginia, USA), scientific research projects on strategic management and many practical case studies on national and international companies are part of the curriculum, and some of the classes are taught in English.

The MSc program has a strong focus on stakeholder management, and it integrates the research results generated at the Institute for Strategic Management: Stakeholder View into classroom teaching, thereby guaranteeing a strong link between academic and practical knowledge.

We are happy that the first class started successfully, and that the students appreciate the integrative teaching concept developed. One method that proofed to be very successful is the so called “strategy diary”, where the students transfer the theoretical concepts and frameworks learned into their daily work.

Mini Case Studies on Stakeholder Management

Based on our empirical investigations, several mini cases were developed and refined by the research team in order to serve as teaching material at HWZ and the University of Zurich.

- Case Study: Stakeholder Management at Pfizer (written by A. Gäumann)
- Case Study: Different Company Cultures at Swiss Re (written by A. Gäumann)
- Case Study Telecommunication: The Antennae Problem (written by I. Kern)
- Case Study: Internal Stakeholder-Management at Feller AG (written by I. Kern)
- Case Study: The Corporate Governance Structure at Suva (written by C. Meier)
- Case Study: New Case Management (NCM) at Suva (written by C. Meier)
- Case Study: Stakeholder Mapping with the example of Sunrise Communications AG (written by M. Moser)
- Case Study: ZKB and WWF, a Common Vision (written by M. Moser)
- Case Study: Hunziker Partner AG and the Challenge of an Industry with a Negative Image (written by I. Perrin)
- Case Study: Orange Communications SA and the Closing of the Call Center in Bussigny, VD (written by I. Perrin)

In Practice

Due to the publications on our research projects in the last year more and more firms, professional institutions and governmental agencies invited us to present our results at their conferences, workshops and management development courses.
Dominic Käslin: “The Dynamics of Firm-Stakeholder Relations”, European Business School. Committee: Prof. Dr. Jean-Paul Thommen, Prof. Dr. Sybille Sachs

Relations between corporations and their stakeholders are in a constant state of flux, oftentimes influenced by acts and events exogenous to a particular firm-stakeholder relation. Facing such a dynamic environment where well established modes of interaction may suddenly produce unpredicted outcomes, representatives of corporations are left wondering how to adapt their behavior. This dissertation contributes to an improved understanding of the processes that shape corporate responses to a changing stakeholder environment. Employing a qualitative single case methodology, the interactions between the Swiss subsidiary of a leading pharmaceutical corporation and general practitioners in Switzerland are studied in light of the changing health care landscape in Switzerland.

Irène Perrin: “Corporate Legitimacy and the Role of the Mass Media as Stakeholders”, University of Zurich. Committee: PD Dr. Werner A. Meier, Prof. Dr. Sybille Sachs

Irène Perrin started her doctorate in October 2006. In her interdisciplinary research project, Perrin takes a closer look at the mass media from a stakeholder perspective, and she integrates research from media and communication studies and stakeholder theory. She investigates how media can be characterized as stakeholders and develops a framework which provides insights into their benefit and risk potentials, thereby focusing on the organizational level of analysis. Whereas from a company’s point of view, media are often perceived as an unpredictable, adversarial stakeholder that challenges the legitimacy of business, Perrin shows that the role of media in legitimation processes is far more complex. Using the example of Pfizer, one of the world’s leading pharmaceutical companies, she illustrates different theoretical approaches regarding the media’s role for corporate legitimacy. Perrin is enrolled at the Institute of Mass Communication and Media Research at the University of Zurich; her thesis is almost completed and will be published in spring 2010.

Committee: Prof. Dr. Dieter Ruloff, Prof. Dr. Sybille Sachs

Claude Meier started his doctorate in July 2009. In his investigation Meier compares the effectiveness of different kinds of global governance systems or transnational standards after their implementation in different Swiss companies. Global governance systems can be established by actors from just one sector (political, economic or societal sector) or by a multi-stakeholder approach through actors from different sectors. Their specifications also can be more or less detailed and their monitoring and sanctioning more or less coercive. The author hypothesize that these characteristics influence the effectiveness of a standard. Meier is enrolled at the Department for Political Science at the University of Zurich.
The following two dissertations have been successfully completed last year and are published in this year’s “HWZ Schriftenreihe”.

Though an increasing number of companies implement knowledge management systems, those frameworks are often text-based and involve merely employees. Isabelle Kern raises the question of whether topic map tools are suitable to include internal and external stakeholders into the knowledge management system. Furthermore, she explains whether topic maps are capable of visualizing tacit knowledge and mental models of stakeholders.

How do global corporations communicate with their stakeholders? George Ulrich illustrates how, by use of market and opinion research, a base for interaction can be formed in order to establish trust, by means of communicative reaction competence.
The Forum Stakeholder View opens a portal between theory and practice for a modern perspective of strategic management in order to enhance a firm’s sustainable success thanks to a professional organization of the relationship with all relevant stakeholders.
During 2009 the Forum Stakeholder View supported the activities of the Institute for Strategic Management: Stakeholder View. For the purpose of its bridging function between theory and practice, the Forum Stakeholder View was also facilitating the ambitions of the Institute to gain more popularity and attention in public with its research findings.

The most notable change for the Forum this year was the redesign of its homepage: www.stakeholderview.ch (under construction). The revision is still running and expected to be completed by the end of January 2010.

The board members of the Forum Stakeholder View are: Prof. Dr. Edwin Rühli (president), Prof. Dr. Sybille Sachs, Dr. Ulrich Gut, Prof. Dr. Ruth Schmitt, Dr. Thomas Streiff, Dr. Mark Veser and Dr. Isabelle Kern.
